

Here's Irish Agreement

London.—The full text of the agreement on the future of the free Irish state follows:

ARTICLE I. Ireland shall have the same constitutional status in the community of nations known as the British empire, as the Dominion of Canada, the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand and the Union of South Africa, with a permanent and exclusive responsibility for peace and order and good government, and the executive responsibility to that parliament, and shall be styled and known as the Irish Free State.

ARTICLE II. Subject to provisions herein set out, the position of the Irish Free State in relation to the imperial parliament, the government, and otherwise shall be that of the Dominion of Canada and the same consequences of continuing the relationship of the crown or representative of the crown and the imperial parliament to the Dominion of Canada shall govern their relationship to the Irish Free State.

Article three of the agreement provides that a representative of the crown in Ireland shall be appointed in like manner as the governor general of Canada, and in accordance with the practices observed in making such appointments.

ARTICLE IV. had not yet been received at press time.

ARTICLE V. The Irish Free State shall assume liability for service of the public debt of the United Kingdom as existing at the date thereof and toward the payment of was pension as existing on that date in such proportion as may be fair and equitable as the reward for any just claims on the part of Ireland by way of seton or counter claim, the amount of such sums being determined, in default of agreement, by the arbitration of one or more independent persons being citizens of the British empire.

ARTICLE VI. Until an arrangement has been made between the British and Irish governments whereby the Irish free state undertakes her own coast defense, defense by sea of Great Britain and Ireland shall be undertaken by his majesty's imperial forces, but this shall not prevent the construction or maintenance by the government of the Irish Free State of such vessels as are necessary for the protection of the rights of the free state. The foregoing provisions of this article shall be reviewed at a conference of representatives of the British and Irish governments to be held at the expiration of five years from the date hereof with a view to the undertaking by Ireland of a share in her own coastal defense.

ARTICLE VII. The government of the Irish Free State, in accord to his majesty's imperial forces (a) in time of peace such harbor and other facilities as are indicated in the annex hereto, or such other facilities as may from time to time be agreed between the British government and the government of the Irish free state, and (b) in time of war or strained relations with a foreign power such harbor and other facilities as the British government may require for the protection of said defense, as aforesaid.

ARTICLE VIII. The government of the Irish Free State, in accord to his majesty's imperial forces (a) in time of peace such harbor and other facilities as are indicated in the annex hereto, or such other facilities as may from time to time be agreed between the British government and the government of the Irish free state, and (b) in time of war or strained relations with a foreign power such harbor and other facilities as the British government may require for the protection of said defense, as aforesaid.

ARTICLE IX. After the expiration of said month, if no such arrangement as mentioned in Article VII hereto is agreed, the parliament of the government of northern Ireland shall continue to exercise as respects northern Ireland the powers conferred upon them by the government of Ireland as of 1920, but the parliament of the Irish Free State is constituted by exercises by that parliament.

ARTICLE X. For the purpose of the last foregoing article the powers of the parliament of southern Ireland under the government of Ireland act of 1920, to elect members of the council of Ireland, shall after the parliament of the Irish Free State is constituted be exercised by that parliament.

ARTICLE XI. After the expiration of said month, if no such arrangement as mentioned in Article X hereto is agreed, the parliament of the government of northern Ireland shall continue to exercise as respects northern Ireland the powers conferred upon them by the government of Ireland as of 1920, but the parliament of the Irish Free State is constituted by exercises by that parliament.

ARTICLE XII. Until an arrangement has been made between the British and Irish governments whereby the Irish free state undertakes her own coast defense, defense by sea of Great Britain and Ireland shall be undertaken by his majesty's imperial forces, but this shall not prevent the construction or maintenance by the government of the Irish Free State of such vessels as are necessary for the protection of the rights of the free state. The foregoing provisions of this article shall be reviewed at a conference of representatives of the British and Irish governments to be held at the expiration of five years from the date hereof with a view to the undertaking by Ireland of a share in her own coastal defense.

ARTICLE XIII. The government of the Irish Free State, in accord to his majesty's imperial forces (a) in time of peace such harbor and other facilities as are indicated in the annex hereto, or such other facilities as may from time to time be agreed between the British government and the government of the Irish free state, and (b) in time of war or strained relations with a foreign power such harbor and other facilities as the British government may require for the protection of said defense, as aforesaid.

ARTICLE XIV. After the expiration of said month, if no such arrangement as mentioned in Article XII hereto is agreed, the parliament of the government of northern Ireland shall continue to exercise as respects northern Ireland the powers conferred upon them by the government of Ireland as of 1920, but the parliament of the Irish Free State is constituted by exercises by that parliament.

ARTICLE XV. This instrument shall be submitted forthwith by his majesty's government for the approval of parliament and by the Irish signatories to a meeting summoned for the purpose of members elected to sit in the house of commons of southern Ireland; and if approved it shall be ratified by the necessary legislation.

ARTICLE XVI. On behalf of the British delegation:

shall in northern Ireland have in relation to matters, in respect of which the parliament of northern Ireland does not have the power to make laws, such power as is included in the jurisdiction of the council of Ireland, the same powers as in the rest of Ireland, subject to such other provision as may be agreed to in the manner hereinafter appearing.

ARTICLE XV. At any time after the date hereof the government of northern Ireland and the provisional government of southern Ireland, hereinafter constituted, may meet for the purpose of discussing provisions, including which, in the case of the foregoing article, is to operate in the event of such address as is herein mentioned being presented, and those provisions may include (a) safeguards with regard to patronage in northern Ireland; (b) safeguards with regard to the collection of revenue in northern Ireland; (c) safeguards with regard to import and export duties affecting the trade and industry of northern Ireland; (d) safeguards for the minorities in northern Ireland; (e) settlement of financial relations between northern Ireland and the Irish Free State; (f) establishment and powers of a local militia in northern Ireland and the relation of the defense forces of the Irish Free State and of northern Ireland, respectively, and if at any such meeting provisions are agreed to the same shall have effect as if they were included among the provisions subject to which the powers of the parliament and of the government of the Irish Free State are to be exercised in the parliament of the Irish Free State for the constituencies of northern Ireland unless a resolution is passed by both houses of parliament or northern Ireland in favor of holding such elections before the end of said month.

ARTICLE XVII. If before the expiration of said month an address is presented to His Majesty by both houses of parliament of northern Ireland to that effect, the powers of the parliament of the Irish Free State, one of which is to be appointed by the British government, shall determine in accordance with the wishes of the inhabitants, so far as may be compatible with economic and geographic conditions, the boundaries between northern Ireland and the rest of Ireland, and for the purposes of the government of Ireland act of 1920 (including the council of Ireland) shall, so far as they relate to northern Ireland, continue to be of full force and effect, and this instrument shall have effect, subject to the necessary modifications;

Provided, that if such an address is so presented, a commission consisting of three persons, one to be appointed by the government of the Irish Free State, one to be appointed by the British government, shall determine in accordance with the wishes of the inhabitants, so far as may be compatible with economic and geographic conditions, the boundaries between northern Ireland and the rest of Ireland, and for the purposes of the government of Ireland act of 1920 (including the council of Ireland) shall, so far as they relate to northern Ireland, continue to be of full force and effect, and this instrument shall have effect, subject to the necessary modifications;

ARTICLE XVIII. For the purpose of the last foregoing article the powers of the parliament of southern Ireland since the passing of the government of Ireland act of 1920 and of this instrument the boundaries of northern Ireland shall be such as may be determined by such commission.

ARTICLE XIX. For the purpose of the last foregoing article the powers of the parliament of southern Ireland under the government of Ireland act of 1920, to elect members of the council of Ireland, shall after the parliament of the Irish Free State is constituted be exercised by that parliament.

ARTICLE XX. This instrument shall be submitted forthwith by his majesty's government for the approval of parliament and by the Irish signatories to a meeting summoned for the purpose of members elected to sit in the house of commons of southern Ireland; and if approved it shall be ratified by the necessary legislation.

ARTICLE XXI. On behalf of the British delegation:

IMPROVEMENT IN BUSINESS SHOWN

Department Report Indicates Price Decline, Production Boost

Washington.—Continued improvement in business conditions in October reflected notably in increased output of iron and steel and in textile production, and widespread stimulation in building and, as pointed out by the department of commerce Wednesday in its "Survey of Current Business," while prices continued to decline slightly during October, the survey showed, the relative stability of prices as compared with preceding months and the improved banking situation as evidenced by smaller loans and lower interest rates were cited as conditions favorable to continued business improvement.

With the exception of metals, the quantitative production in the important industries is shown by the survey to be equal or greater than before the war average of 1913, many lines, including pig iron and cotton and tobacco manufactured, showing an increase of about one-third over the minimum production for the current year.

An increase of 70 per cent over the minimum was reported in the production of building steel, while the output of wheat flour, cement and wool products was shown to have been approximately double the minimum figures.

BABY DIES DESPITE REMOVAL OF NEEDLE FROM HEART MUSCLE

Department Report Indicates

Price Decline, Production Boost

Minneapolis.—Neither a mother's constant care nor an unusual surgical operation, which for a time was deemed a success, was able to save the life of Donald Sandles, whose heart was pierced by a needle Nov. 7.

Donald, 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Sandles, died at the University hospital Saturday.

The boy fell on a piece of cloth from his mother's sewing basket and a needle pierced his body and went toward his heart. An examination by Dr. Thomas Myers, St. Paul, showed the needle touching the heart.

At University hospital Dr. Arthur C. Strachauer opening the lining of the heart then cut through the heart wall. He found the needle embedded in the heart, with the head coming into view with every contraction of the muscles. The boy registered 120 beats a minute before the needle was removed by the most delicate of operations.

A few days later physicians believed the boy was on the road to recovery, but Saturday morning he became weaker, and 12 hours later died.

Samson Adds 100 Men in Month

With the addition of 100 employees during November, work force of Samson Tractor company is indicated to be on the upward trend with more men being added daily. Beginning Dec. 19 and continuing until Jan. 3, inventory of the plant will be taken and there will be practically no production, it was learned Wednesday.

Neglecting That Cold or Cough?

LETTING the old cough or cold drag on, or the new one develop seriously, is folly, especially when at your druggists, you can get such a proved and successful remedy as Dr. King's New Discovery. No drugs, just good medicine that relieves quickly.

For over fifty years, a standard remedy for coughs, colds and grippeases, especially, also loosens up the phlegm, quietes the 'croupy' cough, stimulates the bowels, thus relieving the congestion. All druggists, 60c.

Dr. King's New Discovery For Colds and Coughs

Wake-Up Clear Headed. That "tired out" feeling mornings is due to constipation. Dr. King's Pill, act mildly, stir up the liver and bring a healthy bowel action. All druggists, 25c.

LOCAL POLICEMAN AIDS IN VICTORY

Beloit Man Loses License by

10-5 Vote on Ward's Story of "Hootch."

Testimony of a Janesville policeman, James Ward, that he was served with moonshine when he ordered a glass of ginger ale in Joe Falco's pool room in Beloit the day before, was given as reason for the revocation of Falco's non-intoxicating liquor license by the Beloit city council.

Beloit police officers were called to furnish additional testimony that Falco was responsible for the revocation of Falco's non-intoxicating liquor license by the Beloit city council.

Beloit police immediately summoned the local man to testify.

had bought liquor at Falco's place on Sept. 23.

The Falco case came to a head following publication in the Gazette of W. H. Arnold representing Falco. The minority made three unsuccessful attempts to force adjournment and forestall a vote, but the backers of Falco's enforcement were obstinate and finally forced a vote at 1 a.m. He was allowed to retain his pool and billiard hall license.

If you're gullible enough to swallow that this Janesville policeman's story, then anything I can say won't change your minds," said Attorney Arnold, before the vote.

EDITH DUNN

Edith Roberts has just completed work in the De Mille film, "Saturday Night." J. Parker Reed is the next to use Miss Roberts, for his production titled "Pawn."

And all he could say, was—"Well, good-bye, Jim—take care of yourself!"

THE POET, Riley, has told the story beautifully and well—how the old-fashioned father sent the boy out into the world. A heart full of affection and hope spoke only these words: "Well, good-bye, Jim; take care of yourself."

Enough to say, enough to hope for, enough to do—take care of yourself—and there's the foundation of safety, the promise of success.

And how easy a thing to fail in! For instance, the common practice of coffee or tea-drinking administers to the system a dosing of drug whose harm has been pointed out repeatedly by medical men, sometimes in alarming terms—and whose effect is very commonly found in over-excited nerves, sleeplessness, irritability, indigestion, high blood pressure—loss of efficiency; failure to "get on."

The drug, caffeine in coffee and tea, acts as a whip upon the nerves. Over-whipped nerves may run away, or break down, like an over-whipped horse.

Thousands of people have found for themselves that they cannot safely drink coffee or tea. Some have had the news broken to them by their physicians, and many are complaining about symptoms of nervousness, sleeplessness, and lack of alertness during business hours, and wondering what the cause may be—when the cause probably is tea or coffee. A great many people who know they cannot safely drink coffee at night still hope they can go on with it at other times, and dodge the damage.

How easy it is to fail to take care—and how hard the consequences usually are!

A quarter of a century ago Postum brought to the world's dining table that kindest wish of friendship and good will: "Take care of yourself." Cheerfully, pleasantly, happily. Postum has brought the message and shown the way to increasing thousands in every land—"Take care of yourself."

Postum is a pure cereal beverage, a cup of kindness from Nature's smiling grain fields—a table drink of charm without harm.

There's no drug in Postum—but plenty of satisfaction and comfort. Postum can be enjoyed by every member of the family—no need to draw the danger line and warn away the children as is usually thought necessary with coffee and tea. And no need to fear that Postum with the evening meal will rob the night of sleep—not Postum!

Postum is a friendly drink, always. And it fully satisfies. Those who have tried Postum as a relief from the ills of coffee and tea have kept on with Postum for itself. They have found better sleep, better feeling, better fitness—better health—and they do enjoy the taste of this splendid mealtime drink!

If you are not yet one of the great army of Postum users, you can make the experiment now, without a bit of trouble, and with no sacrifice to taste or comfort. Order Postum from your grocer today, or tell your waiter at the hotel or restaurant to serve it to you. You can get Postum wherever good food and drink are sold or served.

Have Postum prepared according to directions, make the test of its use for ten days, compare your feeling with the old experience—and see whether you want to turn back.

Postum points the way along the sunrise road—away from the risks—and gives you the message in which most of the good wishes of life are summed up—"Take care of yourself."

Startling Figures on Federal Expenditures Furnished by Haskin.

More than 92 percent of the 1920 federal appropriation of $4,582,000,000 was provided for war debts, pensions and armaments according to information given. Gazette reader by Frederick Haskin, director of the Cavalry Information Bureau, Washington, D. C. The figures are from a survey made by the Bankers' Economic Service.

The appropriation was divided as follows:

Fast wars, $2,890,000,000, or 63.2 percent.

Future wars, including armaments, $1,348,000,000, or 29.4 percent.

Civil departments of the government, $20,000,000, or 0.4 percent.

Public works, $85,000,000, or 1.8 percent.

Education, public health, research and development, $55,000,000, or 1.3 percent.

Only 244,000 Indians Left.

There are only 244,437 Indians living in the United States, according to Mr. Haskin's figures, given another inquiry to the Janesville. The statistics are from the 1920 census.

"Just to settle an argument, is there any state or states where is there any state or states where a niece may marry an uncle?" is another question to the Information Bureau.

Marriages between nieces and uncles are prohibited in all states, the reply says.

Inquiring as to the date and place of marriage of some old pieces of sheet, another writer is referred to a publication in New York, while another is given references to determine the toll charges at the Panama Canal.

In progressive "500," the winning partners progress, usually changing partners. This information is given an Oxfordville reader to settle a dispute as to whether the "winners" at the first table remain without changing partners.

"Any Get Hooked,"

"If I buy stock below par in a company, it goes into bankruptcy will I be liable?" For the difference between what I paid for the stock and its par value?" another man asks.

"You will not be liable for the difference between the price you paid and the par value at that time," according to the Information Bureau.

Books on a variety of subjects were given, etc. to 114 Gazette readers as follows: "Orange and Lemon Recipes," 22; Pan-American maps, 12; "School Child's Health," 7; milk bottles, 17; "Rice as a Food in the Home," 2; "Roses for the Home," 2; "How To Make and Use Concrete," 2; "Care of Food in the Home," 4; "House, Rats and Mice," 20; "European Problems," 10.

COVER FOODSTUFFS IS NEW APPEAL OF SANITARY INSPECTOR

Keep foods protected from the air no matter whether or not there are flies around, is the latest plea of Dr. L. J. Woodworth, city sanitary inspector, addressed to grocery, butcher, restaurant and bakery owners and housewives.

"It should be emphasized that the danger of exposing foods is not alone from flies," said Dr. Woodworth. "It requires no extensive brief to convince any man of ordinary intelligence that air cannot work anything but mischief in food products. Everyone knows that even a trace of air in the housekeeper's fruit jar will spoil the contents and that all that hastens the deterioration of fruit when the seal is broken."

"Bacteria are constantly circulating in the air. Each mote of air acts as an airplane on which these bacteria ride, settling on foods exposed to the air. Typhoid and scarlet fever and septic sore throat are the diseases most commonly caused through such practice."

Crackers, cookies, dates, meats—all such things should be kept covered.

"This is the age of wax-wrapped bread and sanitary cartons for food products," says Dr. Woodworth.

MANY PROTESTS ON NEW PHONE RATES

Cancellation of Service Threatened by Number—Cash Fights Wave.

With some 40 subscribers already having ordered their telephones removed on account of the increased rates incident to the union of the two Janesville exchanges, and others threatening similar action, a wave of protest is apparent in various sections.

To stem the tide and forestall any more widespread cancellation of telephone service, Manager W. N. Cash of the Wisconsin Telephone company is endeavoring to point out the advantages—born of the merger along with the disadvantages—of the new double system. He is hoping that the new system is better, and while it is per month more expensive than it was paid by the 16th will be a big argument in maintaining service.

Protest "Plain Line" Style.

Many complaints have been heard on the new plan for a four-party line where each subscriber will have to listen to a ring for his neighbor as well as his own. This suits too much of the rural districts, and for lines—most subscribers say. On the other hand, Mr. Cash contends the new system is better because it is less complicated, therefore assuring fewer interruptions in service. Under the Rock county or Kellogg system on the four-party lines, a subscriber's phone rang only when he was actually being called.

Reconsideration is asked by Mr. Cash of those who have ordered their phones out.

Those who want them re-installed it will cost them $2.50 for a service connection," he said.

Speaking for the co-operation of the public Mr. Cash outlined a few of the present rates over the former schedule of charges:

Features of New Rates.

A 25 cent discount is allowed which was not given heretofore.

An additional 50 cents a month charge is not made for having a desk telephone preference to a wall phone as was made under the old system.

No charge will be made for removing the stock of telephone equipment.

At the present rates over the former schedule of charges:

For the 16th month the new rates:

A SCHOOL FOR GYPSIES

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Washington, D. C.—Washington has a gypsy school with 21 young gypsies, all busily studying the mysteries of the first reader.

Whether the school will last long enough for the children to find out what happens on the last page of the book depends on the uncertain gypsy temperament. If the call to wander comes tomorrow, the teacher who has been deputed by the public school system to teach the gypsy school may find herself suddenly without a single pupil.

The young gypsies of the class have traveled through Russia, Brazil, Panama, Mexico, India and other countries. They speak a number of languages fluently. Among themselves they break into Spanish, French, gypsy dialect, Russian and Italian.

Yet only two or three of these young linguists and travelers have ever been seen inside a schoolroom. One who has tried school before in the course of his travels, remarked to his present teacher, Mrs. R. V. Wackerman, "You are good teacher, and I learn to read. Other teachers no good."

Until November 8, which was the red letter day when they started to school, none of the children, from the six-year-olds to those of thirteen years, could read or write his own name.

They might have gone on lacking this accomplishment indefinitely, if the band had not stopped in a city with the intention of staying all winter—perhaps. The police reported that the children of a gypsy band were hanging around the streets at hours when all civilized youngsters are cooped up in schoolrooms. The school authorities investigated and then began the process of getting a troupe of gypsy children to school.

There were so many of the children, and so fantastic was their apparel, that a special class was opened for them in one of the public schools. They came, rather eagerly, interested in the promise that they would learn to read. And they have stuck. Reading particularly interests them. They labor untiringly over the stories of Tom at the Seashore and Little Bo Peep. In their month of schooling they have read 62 pages of their reader and what they learn they remember.

The teacher's only difficulty is that they'll all covet the privilege of being the one to read aloud, "read for you," offers one black-eyed boy.

"No me, I read him good," insists another, and occasionally one enthusiastic scholar rises without invitation to read to the class.

THERE IS BUT ONE REMEDY AND THAT IS REAL MANAGEMENT.

There is but one remedy for the city of Janesville in obtaining an administration of its affairs that will bring about a centralization of responsibility and give to the people something besides a page from a joke book as a reason for failure.

The recent conditions on Black Hawk and other streets in that section of the city, the attempt to pass the buck from one official to another, the complete failure to remedy the situation, the tax rate and the budget, the waste and extravagance in the lighting, the determination to have asphalt paving whether the property owners want it or not, the system of closed specifications, the inefficiency in street repair and the waste here and there, are just a few of the things in the indictment against the present city government.

The tax rate is a concrete evidence of what has happened. It is to be noticed that the mayor says Beloit will pay a 30 cent tax rate. In another breath the mayor wants the tax valuation reviewed by the state tax commission so as to raise Beloit's rate and admits in his expressions of opinion, that the rate of assessment there is far below that of Janesville. In other words with a tax rate of 30 cents the actual rate in Beloit is less than that of Janesville. This blanket is not large enough to cover up anybody responsible for the inexcusably large budget in this city, nor does it blind the people to the disgracefully high cost of our own government.

In a few days now we will go under the general charter law adopted by the state to replace all the special charters. But it will be little better so far as responsibility is concerned than under the 40-year-old document. The mayor is a picturesque head of the city government without determining power in any but the most trivial matters. As for being a city manager, he is not and could not be under the general charter no matter how much he might desire to manage and muck in everything.

Cleveland, Ohio, tried of fancy mayors and irresponsibility has just adopted the managerial system and Dayton, Ohio, has reaffirmed her belief in the government of manager form.

Every dollar the citizens of Janesville pay for taxes is split into two parts, one is waste and the other we get something for. Mr. Gaylord Cummings in his analysis of the city government clearly demonstrated that we wasted far too much and the only remedy was the centralization of management.

Figure out how many hard days' work the taxes you pay cost you and how much of it you feel sure will be used for real benefit of the city, and how much will go to waste and putting inefficiency?

Then ask yourself if much, if not most of it, could not be stopped by a city manager who would manage.

"Japan seeking offensive ships."—headline. All war ships are offensive right now.

"PROHIBITION, THE CURSE OF NATIONS." In an article printed in a Milwaukee newspaper, Dr. J. J. Seelman says that "prohibition is the curse of nations" and taking his cue from brewery ads and a recent article in the Chicago Tribune, says eventually the United States will be in the same place Turkey occupies as a national force, if all quit booze. The doctor rays on in the same way showing that he neither knows nor cares about history and not much about the orientals or what is actually happening in the United States.

The favorite topic of the spokesman for the booze advocates is the fact that unprogressive nations have no breweries and do not drink Old Crow. Doc Seelman ought to remember that the white man tried to civilize the American Indian with whisky and some of the best church members of the colonial days were given to swilling rum and molasses to the savage in order to give him the high uplift. The result is known to any student of history. The Indian was never an admirable sort; whisky had the same effect on him that it has on the average white man, increased his capacity to raise hell several hundred per cent. The Turk or the Hindu did not reach his present place in the world's civilization because he did not like a schooner of rum over a bar and keep his waiting family out of the pay check he was taking home. He has always had alcohol when he could get the price—wine and arrack, a smelly drink, perfumed and potent. Whenever the Turk has "atrophic metabolic" disturbances, the doctor talks about, he can take a drink of arrack and get just as much satisfaction from beating up his wife as the civilized American could.

Who's Who Today

BY A. S. FRANKLIN

If you look in Who's Who and the various publications which record greatness you will not find P. A. S. Franklin's name. For a man who handles as many matters of vast importance as the country's business as he does, he is the least known of any of his contemporaries.

And yet he has climbed to the top by a steady climb in the one business of shipping until he heads the great International Mercantile Marine Company.

He first came to light as a boy with a public school education who went to Paris in 1889 as a clerk to the American commissioner general at the Paris exposition. He came back to take the post of office boy for the Atlantic Transport Company at Montreal, where he began to show his talents and ability to such an extent that when he was transferred to New York in 1891 he was made local agent and seven years later found him general manager.

He was made vice president and director of the International Mercantile Marine in 1902, and then was called to the presidency.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

A SHAME.

A blind and deaf girl at the state institution at Alton is being educated in a school for the blind and deaf.

Stockings fell over their shoes. Some of the girls were ragged. And there were few signs of a morning scrub.

Now, in less than a month, there is a noticeable change. Some of the boys still rebel at collars, and when they go out they pull on sweaters and coats that fall to the knees and otherwise swallow them. But aside from the foreign look, their dark skin and eyes, they are not easily distinguishable from other children of a poor district.

The appearance of the children attracts considerable attention. Mrs. Wackerman says that the first day they started to school they were typical, carefree gypsies. The boys' hair was combed. Stockings fell over their shoes. Some of the girls were ragged. And there were few signs of a morning scrub.

Now, in less than a month, there is a noticeable change. Some of the boys still rebel at collars, and when they go out they pull on sweaters and coats that fall to the knees and otherwise swallow them. But aside from the foreign look, their dark skin and eyes, they are not easily distinguishable from other children of a poor district.

The girls still cling to the styles of gypsy dress. One little girl, who is typical, had on a green flowered muslin dress, made long—to the ankle—and very full. There were ruffles on the sleeves and a ruffle below the waist. A rose colored sash was at her belt, and strings of plaid cloth fastened her two braids. On her feet were the shoes of a woman, with fairly high heels. A slight tear in the back of the waist showed that the child had on little else beside the dress, though it was a cold day.

All of the girls have long hair. They explained that it was against the gypsy rules for them to cut their braids.

It seems strange to us that these gypsy families, some of whom have expensive automobiles in which to travel, should keep their children so carelessly clothed. The children never seem to think of their dress, though on the suggestion of the teacher, they are striving to achieve neatness and cleanliness.

These gypsies live in houses during the winter, at least. Some of the families rent apartments which are fairly expensive as rents go nowadays. Furniture bothers them very little. A cook stove and a pile of featherbeds are the chief requisites. At night they sleep on and under feather mattresses, and in the day these mattresses are piled up with a cretonne cover out of the way. Most of the families sit on the floor, and eat at a low, long table.

The men of this particular band are copper-bottoms, and the women, as usual, are fortune tellers. One little girl explained that her mother learned to tell fortunes in a school in Jerusalem, and that she obtained a degree in the art there.

A boy of about eleven years—few of them know their ages—claims to be grandson to the king of the gypsies. This boy, Tanis Miller, says that the king follows the carnivals or parties at which gypsy bands meet to enjoy themselves. "He's in the south now, somewhere," Tanis explained.

When he was asked who would be king after his grandfather, he said, "His boy."

"Your father?"

"No, his boy is with him," said Tanis.

This seems to make Tanis' succession to the throne rather doubtful, but he is studying hard because he says a gypsy king must be smart and know how to dance and make money.

Most of the children are acquiring an interest in Americanism. The American flag hangs conspicuously in their schoolroom, and they have learned to salute it. One child who was pointed out by another as having been born in Russia, protested, saying, "You stop telling that. I am American."

Even when school is dismissed, they cling to their reading books, and insist on taking them home to read to their families. The last little boy out, proudly slung a huge black satchel over his shoulder and dropped it into a little brown primer. With this badge of learning, the young gypsy went out smiling broadly.

Charlie Morse spent several hard months in Atlanta prison and was pardoned because he was too old to die. One would suppose he would avoid the very appearance of monkeying with Uncle Sam.

Some people have the idea there is a lot of liquor made in the south because you can find cotton gin's most anywhere.

A woman convinced against her will is of the same opinion still," remarks the superior man as he reads the Arbuckle jury report.

The Power of the Press

Power always brings with it responsibility.

You cannot have power to work well without having so much responsibility as to be able to work in it if you turn yourself into that way.

The newspaper has a great power for good means that it has also a great power for evil. I do not think that is enough.

I will go further. I think that it is not enough for a newspaper man to make up his mind that he won't use the paper to debauch the public conscience; if he is neutral about good and bad and makes his profession, so far as he is able, neutral in doing good and evil, it simply becomes a profession for which you have not much use in the way of best and most honest news.

He must have high ideals, and he must be able to get those ideals adopted by a reasonable proportion of his fellows, if the profession is to rank as high as it ought to.

SYNOPSIS
Thrown out of a job in his father's livery stable because of failure, George Morton becomes horse wrangler for a winter, and an amateur. The youth falls in love with Sylvia Planter, and when she falls from her horse, he kisses her. This brings on a fight. Morton leaves goes to Princeton and determines on a college education. He makes the football team, studies with intense devotion and the aid of a tutor, George Bally.

Goodhue, it came to him with a new appreciation of difficulties, was the proper sort. He watched him walk off with well-dressed, weak-looking youth, threading a careless course among his class mates.

"How long have you known this fellow Goodhue?" George asked as he crossed the campus with Rogers.

"Oh, Goodhue," Rogers said, "uncomfortably. "I've seen him many times. I ran into him last night."

"Good-looking man," George commented. "Where's he come from?"

"I don't know who Dickie Goodhue is," Rogers cried. "I mean, you must have heard of his father anyway, the old Richard, Real Estate for generations. Money grows for them without their turning a hand. Dickie's up at the best clubs in New York. Plays junior golf on Long Island."

George had heard enough.

"I do well with the other exams," he said. "I'm going to get in."

With practiced customs when they were he was thinking, he could appear as well dressed as the Goodhue crowd. He would take pains with that.

He passed Goodhue on his way to the examination hall that afternoon. Goodhue didn't remember him. The incident made George thoughtful. Was football going to prove the only real lover he had fancied? At any rate, Rogers' value was at last established.

He reported that evening to Bally. "I think it's all right so far."

The tutor grimmed.

Naturally he resented being asked.

"I was jealous! I was all the more, resentful, because I was jealous, furiously so, and because I was jealous at myself for being jealous."

"It wasn't very nice of you to rear them up," I said.

"It wasn't very nice of you to leave," he answered. "You were the one that left me, you know. I had all the cause in the world to be angry."

"I never wanted to leave, Win," I began. "You practically drove me into doing it."

"How very foolish of you," he turned, walking back into the living room, with my following.

"Besides, I never saw you anyway, even when I was living with you. You were always out. I only saw you when I went out on long tiresome parties."

He turned to face me, leaning against a table, his arms crossed, his velvet dressing gown still trailing its cord along the floor.

"You're just where you were a year ago," I said. "You have the same little prejudices, the same jealousies, the same stubborn way of looking at things."

"You went away and left me. Did you expect me to sit here and plan away? Now you come back and reseal the fact that once in awhile while you were living your own way separate from mine, I went out and away."

"I'm not the same. What a way to put it!"

I was hurt through and through. Win still had the power to hurt me, actually, one of the penalties of a great, an sensitive love. I stood looking at him, wondering why I was in love with him when he could be so cruel and so unfair.

And yet I liked him. I was. It was something, because he was handsome, though he was one of the daintiest looking men I had ever seen. It wasn't because he was clever, though he had an amazing ability of picking things up quickly. Win suffered from a one-sided education, the limited education of a small town. He had developed enormously, though he got away among new people and clever people, but he had the instinct for seeing the best thing to imitate, and then to imitate it until it was natural to him.

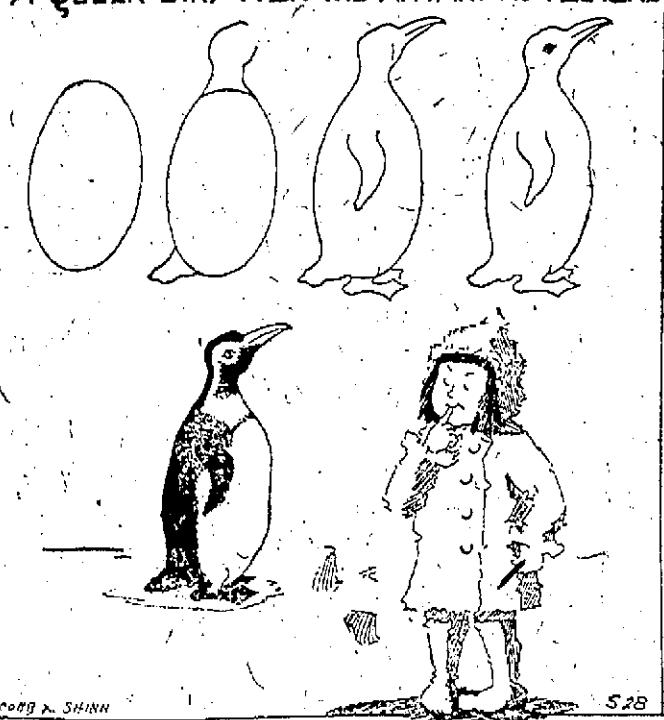

Sometimes he went wrong. He was too easily led, too much impressed by superficial things and superficial people. Sometimes he forgot and became unmercifully rude—ad ho, he had done just now.

Then he would turn again, with

THE penguin is a bird, but he looks more like a scarecrow. His wings are very small and are more like the flappers of a seal, these help to make him a good swimmer. But you would laugh to see him try to walk on those web feet, he lumbers over the ground like a boy with his feet tied in a sack. The penguin lives in the Far South, where great numbers of them will build a square village. Each family will have their little plot, the village has streets and lanes. If a member of another family gets off his lot there is a lot of scolding and pushing until the neighbor has him out of his yard.

WHEN STENOGRAPHERS ARE PUBLIC

We come now to consider the case of Euthalia Lavery, public stenographer, with a rich and heavy mahogany desk on the Louis XIV. mezzanine floor of the most pretentious hotel in the city. Euthalia sat all day among the men, for her desk was in that section of the mezzanine floor reserved for traveling men's confessions of the pens and blotters supplied by the glittering extravaganter. Over her head was a gay little electric banner reading, "Public Stenographer, Hours 10 to 6. And besides, don't be afraid to be a social snob, it's a conventional dress, was a nice brass cuspidor that had the aesthetic proportions of a Grecian urn.

Euthalia had gone in for a business career with both feet, as the saying was. She was the graduate with highest honors at business college. After graduation she had made several visits to bookstores where she bought of her own accord, without outside suggestion, such books as "The Efficiency of Success," "The Theory of Business," "Psychology and the Business Woman," "That's Allright," "Women's Not Noticing," "It's delightfully exciting to find a girl with Euthalia's enthusiasm and interest these degenerate days.

But though Euthalia went in for business with both feet, as the saying is, one little foot rebelled or lost interest at times. This little foot would get tired of the monotony of being cooped up in a room and would start to walk, with arched ankles, for a look through chintz stockings at the interesting world—and to be seen if so.

Whether Euthalia knew of the weariness of this foot, we can't say.

But we do know that gem-like foot gave Ralph Morrison a queer start, so that he spent two hours of an afternoon moving from writing desk to writing desk, in a fruitless attempt to engage the attention of Euthalia's eyes.

At last he strode up to her.

"Will you take a letter, please?" he asked gently.

"What a social snob you have become, Connie," we said slowly and deliberately, watching the effect of every word upon me.

In a minute, still looking down, she signaled to him. "Twenty-five cents please," she said. Here's the typing that delivered.

To Whom It May Concern: During two hours it is regular that I meet anyone in a business way, so I know Sir. Ralph Morrison in a public business way. After business hours I live with my parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Lavery, through whom a social introduction might be contrived. Euthalia Lavery.

BEAUTY CHATS

by Edna Kent Forbes

BEAUTY, HEALTH AND PLEASURE

About this time every year I want to write about an ideal way to spend an afternoon, a way that will give you health that will add to your beauty and that will give you as well an enormous amount of pleasure; it's all done by taking a country walk and it's a splendid thing to do on Sunday after church and an early lunch with a prospect of a hot and nourishing dinner ahead.

I don't mean the weather. December is usually a beautiful month, but if you are in a proper frame of mind, any sort of weather is beautiful. You must put on an old suit with a short wide skirt, wool stockings, low-heeled broad-toed Oxford shoes if you have them, if not, the most comfortable shoes that you have, that will stand weather and either a sweater or a raincoat, according to whether it is cold or wet.

Whether Euthalia knew of the weariness of this foot, we can't say. But we do know that gem-like foot gave Ralph Morrison a queer start, so that he spent two hours of an afternoon moving from writing desk to writing desk, in a fruitless attempt to engage the attention of Euthalia's eyes.

At last he strode up to her.

"Will you take a letter, please?" he asked gently.

$810,000 IN ROAD WORK IN ROCK CO.

Program for 1922 Largest in History—Need $486,000 for Concrete.

Rock county will spend approximately $810,000 for good roads in 1922.

This will include 21.5 miles of concrete to cost $46,000 which was voted by the board, 17 miles of new gravel trunk lines and 20 miles of resurfacing, according to a report compiled this week by the highway commissioner Charles E. Moore to be submitted to the state highway commission.

In addition to the concrete road fund, which will necessitate the sale of additional county road bonds to be authorized during the January board meeting, there is $125,000 balance still in the treasury. It is estimated that the county's share from the auto license fund will amount to $60,000.

Detached Road Funds.

The total amount for roads and bridges for 1922 will amount to $24,355.47 with the special benefit assessed against towns, villages or cities for the federal aid roads, amounting to $5,430 and the state aid to meet the first 550 percent, $10,348.88 with assessments against municipalities amounting to $6,355.59, the county's share, $1,172.53 and the second largest, the second 550 percent, $21,339.92. The total to be expended on the state trunk lines in concrete is estimated at $486,000.

The total raised for county aid bridge and road work amounts to $20,000.

A total of $30,000 is reported in the maintenance fund, with $5,500 for supervision with $6,822.53 municipal assessed.

The state and federal aid allotted to the county for road projects amounts to $8,481.81 to be applied on the Beloit-Clinton highway, route 161 and the state aid allotted to this job is $22,775.28.

The regular patrol of the highways will be continued and the total maintenance fund of $30,000 is in the hands of the county highway committee.

Contractors To Bid.

Surveys and plans for the building of several miles of highway, 10 from Janesville toward Evansville, are nearly ready. This makes possible early construction by the day-labor force. The preliminary survey has been completed on highway 20 on the three routes, or two possible re-locations, and a division engineer from the state commission looked over the three lines Tuesdays.

Contractors will be given opportunity to bid for the 7.5 miles on road 61 from Beloit to Clinton. In the event they are low enough with their bids around $22,000 or $23,000 a mile, the board is planning to let the work by contract with the approval of the state and Governor J. J. Blaine. There are good gravel pits, say the road authorities, for the Clinton road, but they are two miles or more from the road necessitating hauling by trucks.

"With our horses we can get the cost on the Evansville road to below the $20,000 mark next year," declared Commissioner Moore. At least that is the figure we are going to strive for to better this year's work. Costs will be reduced and more certain prices and assurance of materials."

Program of Work...

The total road figure for 1922 is almost double the 1921 figure when $345,561 was expended for highway work.

On the trunk lines the new gravel roads planned include three miles on the Milton-Johnstown road to Six Corners; two miles on the state line road east of Beloit to make a total of 10 miles of highway, 10 from Janesville toward Evansville.

Yeast Eaters

SUSTO is rich in Yeast, Rice, Milk, Eggs, Iron, and Beef Protein — You'll like its taste

APPROVED BY SCIENTISTS

after months of clinical tests at one of America's greatest medical colleges.

SUSTO contains all the Vitamines of yeast and in addition the Vitamines of rice, eggs, milk, beef, etc., all the vitamines, A, B, C, which are absolutely necessary to prevent starvation and promote growth and strength.

If you are out in a boat for a week without food, SUSTO alone would sustain life and nourish you.

SUSTO contains in addition to all the known Vitamines iron, calcium and protein, which makes it the most perfect tonic food obtainable.

Not one ounce of SUSTO was offered to the public until its tonic food value was definitely established after months of practical tests by Dr. Philip B. Hawk, Professor of Physiological Chemistry of Jefferson Medical College.

SUSTO therefore is the only tonic nutritive on which thousands of dollars were spent in clinical and scientific tests to prove its therapeutic and food value before being placed on the market.

These tests extended over months and proved indisputably that SUSTO is a most efficient ration balancer and if added to the daily food three times a day will remedy and prevent malnutrition and its allied diseases.

SUSTO is especially valuable to convalescents, to those who are losing weight, to puny, delicate children, and to men, women and children in general who show signs of a rundown system.

Science has proved that it is not medicine that is required in these conditions but properly balanced food. SUSTO balances the daily ration. A balanced ration will prevent and remedy malnutrition and its allied diseases.

MERGING OF PHONE LINES GREAT TASK

Large Crew of Engineers, Linemen, Begin Gigantic Job Here.

The task the Janesville department of the Wisconsin Telephone company is now facing—that of combining the Rock county lines with the "Bell" system—is a gigantic one. It means even more work than the installation of an entire new system. Telephone lines must be taken out of poles and others installed, poles and wires put up, a complete system of cables must be taken out and the wires they carry put in another cable. All of this will be done without interruption of service to one customer.

W. N. Cash, manager of the Wisconsin Telephone company's Janesville district, and his staff are being assisted in this work by several officials of the company both from the Chicago and Milwaukee offices. They include: R. M. Kynaston, Milwaukee, general traffic superintendent; E. E. Chandler, Milwaukee, general traffic superintendent; Leslie Kiltan, Milwaukee, general plant superintendent; P. A. Eustis, Milwaukee, toll traffic superintendent for Wisconsin; Mr. Bloom, Chicago, general traveling auditor; and A. E. Curry, Milwaukee, supervisor of methods.

New Rates Effective.

The entire staff of the Rock County Telephone company from the manager to the janitor, Mr. Cash stated, has been continued as employees of the Wisconsin Telephone company. This includes 26 operators. The Bell system had 3,500 patrons in Janesville and the Rock county 2,713. There are 680 people in Janesville who have both phones, and should each have one phone taken out there will be 6,000 patrons for the combined system. Some grocery stores, and other places of business having an unusually large amount of business, keeping two phones.

The new rates which went into effect Thursday, Dec. 1, are: $1.75 monthly for four-party residential phone; $2.25 two-party; $2.50 individual; $4 two-party business and $5 for single business. The rates in the rural districts are $2.25 within a radius of 10 miles and 25 cents additional for every mile, more than six.

Eliminate Connection Charge.

Mr. Cash urges the people to use the service. No longer will a patron have the inconvenience and cost of transferring from one line to another. The physical connection charge is eliminated.

A crew of between 20 and 30 men came to Janesville Thursday to begin work in what will eventually in about a year in the completion of the work which will make one telephone system out of two. The work is difficult, as in order that service to a customer may not be interrupted, temporary lines and wires will in many instances have to be installed.

Install Phones at One Rate.

Wall or desk phones will be operated at the same rates under the new system. Before, the charges were different.

The process which made possible overnight the combination of the two systems so that a customer on one line could speak with a patron on the other system, either in the city or rural district, was carried out under the direction of Mr. Chandler, the telephone superintendent for the Wisconsin Telephone company, the highest official next to W. R. McCay, vice president and general manager. The system under which business is never being carried on in a large city where they have a large number of exchanges connected by a plating of a wire.

When a patron asks for long distance, whether on the Rock county or the Bell phone, it is now handled by an operator in the Wisconsin Telephone company office. A patron on the Rock county line wishing to talk to someone having a phone on the rural line of the Rock county, or vice versa, has the connection completed as quickly as though it was one system. For instead of the operator having first to call the local operator of the other system and then getting the rural district operator, she gets into immediate touch with the rural operator of the other line. Other complications which would arise if necessary, the connection of the call by three persons is completed by two. Accuracy first and speed second is constantly the goal of the employees, Mr. Cash stated.

Use Prefix to Numbers.

Until the new system is completed, it will be necessary to designate the lines as Rock and Bell in making a call, or if a Rock county party line, instead of calling Rock, calling the color.

"We will be pleased to have the association of patrons in the use of the prefix with the telephone number, which will assist materially in rendering satisfactory service," Mr. Cash said.

A crowded condition has existed for some time in the Wisconsin Telephone company system here, with the increase in business and many patrons desiring single lines have been placed on party lines. This will be eradicated in the next year. It is expected, when two birds will be killed with one stone, namely, the combination of the two systems and the enlargement of the lines.

Invention Better Service.

Many things which will develop better service will be installed here in the near future. Among the most important, Mr. Cash stated, will be means to know when the audible signal, or the attention of the operator will be attracted to a person wishing to complete a call by a noise. Under the system now, a light only is seen. This will tend toward speeding up service.

None of the Rock County nickel plated phones will be used. All of them will be taken out and standard equipment as used throughout the country by the Bell lines will be installed.

When the lines are all being handled from one office, the numbers of the Rock county patrons will be changed. Their numbers will be $400 plus their former.

See Elimination of Operators.

Looking into the future 10 or 15 years, Mr. Cash predicts the elimination in Janesville of the operators, with all calls being handled by machines except the long distance calls. That will require the employment of operators to complete the calls, as machinery has not been invented yet which is human. Although some of it borders it. Automatic systems are now being experimented with.

Another innovation in the telephone business in this section of the country is the concrete telephone booth. This has been built recently near Milwaukee on the Chicago-Minneapolis long distance line. Mr. Cash stated that each weighs from 2 to 3 tons and is guaranteed for 100 years' service. The weight of them means a high freight rate, although the poles are made in a process which leaves the center hollow, reducing the weight greatly. They are heavily reinforced and cost from $80 to $120 each.

Cost, $100 each.

The building on Milwaukee street will be adequate for present needs with the combination of the two companies, it is believed, but with the present rate of growth, it will probably not be many years before it will

WISCONSIN LEADING STATE FOR POTATOES

Wisconsin is one of the leading potato states in the union. The federal department of commerce statement showing that 166,231 farms in the Badger state reported potato raising in 1920. The production in bushels in the state is given as being 36,376,021. In apples the state raised 1,205,084 bushels in 1920. The sales on apples only amounted to $8,698 or 25¢ per cent.

Potatoes can be promoted as an important southern Wisconsin crop, for Wisconsin ranks fourth in production with Maine leading, then New York, Minnesota and Wisconsin close behind. One of the best potato raisers in Rock county is Charles Marquette, owning a farm east of this city, who had a good crop of certified seed this summer.

With two victories to date, the one over the Indian Aces last week stamping them as an exceptional team, the R. F. B. 5 roots for the Freeport Cardinals in the Coliseum at 8:30 Wednesday night. They have a tough scrap on their hands, but with every man in good condition and training, they will take the floor confident of repeating their win of a year ago over this crack Illinois organization.

Freeport promises to send a good aggregation of fans to root for the city club. They will back up a quartet that has gained considerable experience battling together for the past five years.

The quality of the visitors is gained from the 23 victories and four defeats that made up last year's season. They have won eight games and lost one so far this year. Neither in 1920 or 1921 have they been beaten by more than three baskets.

The Freeport five is small, averaging 115 pounds, but carries the eagle-eye basket men of the town.

IRVINE CANNOT ACT AS BELoit CAPTAIN

Beloit—Orders for an immediate re-election of football captain at the college were issued by the athletic committee, "Doc" Irvine, state end, who was picked to lead the 1922 eleven at the football banquet last Tuesday night.

Due to a faculty regulation, to the effect that no man who has not matriculated here, is eligible to be chosen captain, Irvine has been ruled out. "Doc," who entered school last spring, has not yet been matriculated here.

The action demanding the re-election was taken by the athletic board Tuesday. Prof. Conwell, Boulton, and Haynes are the faculty members on this committee.

[strict to the gazette]

Elkhorn—The Elkhorn State bank is having an improved system of burglar alarms installed. It is considered the best money can buy. A system of alarms to be used in case of a daylight holdup is one improvement over the former system. During the night the vaults are wired in such a way that any tampering with the doors or the use of heat will give a signal. Any tampering with wires also will set the alarm going. The bank will continue to carry $100,000 in burglary insurance, which covers the contents of the deposit boxes as well as the money and securities in the vaults.

New Garage Opens

Squires & Wheeler automobile dealers and garage men, have taken possession of the new building recently completed by Robert Orlitz. The new building is constructed of concrete blocks with a face of brick on the Walworth street side and is located just east of the present garage of Squires & Wheeler at Walworth and Washington streets. The two buildings have been connected with a doorway and both will be used by this company.

HARDING MESSAGE TO CONGRESS HELD REMARKABLE PLEA

been known on the inside for several weeks and has just come to a head in his message.

Party Responsibility.

The president feels deeply on the subject of the "agricultural bloc" and the way it exerted its influence in the making of the tax bill, and here is his rebuke:

"I believe the political party in power should assume responsibility, determine upon policies in the conference which supplement conventions and election campaigns, and then strive for achievement through adherence to the accepted policy."

The president made it clear that he had no desire to encroach upon the legislative branch of the government or to distract Congress, but his message goes on with the following requests for more authority and power to the executive than is now possessed:

First, the right to negotiate with foreign governments concerning the funding of war debts. Mr. Harding promises that he will submit the agreement reached to Congress but must not be hindered by Congress during the negotiations.

Second, the right to ignore those provisions of the Merchant Marine Act of 1920 enacted by a previous Republican Congress which requires the United States to denounce certain treaties that conflict with the authority of our government to grant reduced duties on imports carried to our shores in vessels flying the American flag.

Third, the right of the executive to handle the "unusual" tariff law which it is passed so that rates may be adjusted "to meet unusual and changing conditions which cannot be accurately anticipated."

Congress and the President.

Unquestionably there will be a controversy over each one of these requests. Already Congress has shown a tendency to balk at the grant of power in the first case. Contention over the second has been going on for several months. The attitude of Congress on the third point has not yet crystallized though the advocates of high protection see in it a menace to the permanence of the rates which may be granted them. The whole thing will afford a test of Mr. Harding's influence with Congress. His political friends are predicting that he will win out because they say that as the congressional elections approach they will be held next November.
